An initiative in community policing for safety of women

LADLI COPS

It has always been the endeavor of Bihar Police to provide an environment of safety and security for women. This need gets accentuated in the present scenario in the changing socio-economic culture. The CID Branch of Bihar Police under the leadership Sri Alok Raj IPS ADG (CID) in association with Ladli Foundation came up with the concept of having women community Police. For this initiative, volunteers from girls studying in different colleges of Patna were identified and trained. Each of these girls were provided with ID cards authorized by Bihar Police and are called Ladli Cops.

Ladli Cops volunteers have been sensitized, regarding laws related to women safety, about police working, communication skills, procedure of filling complaints, creating awareness among other girls/women. These volunteers shall work as bridges/links between women in need of assistance and Police. So far more than 200 girls from various colleges of Patna have been selected and trained as Ladli Cops. This initiative will now be extended to other districts of Bihar.
